Holdup spree cracked

Delaware State Police arrested an alleged serial shotgun robber suspected in eleven armed robberies over the past three months. Robert Hanulik, 53, of Newark, allegedly robbed four gas stations and convenience stores on July 25, a beer distributor on Aug. 20, three liquor stores earlier this month and three businesses in the span of 45 minutes on Sept. 25. METRO

Here, here, Jesus!

Right-wing Christian prayer assembly "America for Jesus 2012" will be held on Independence Mall on Friday and Saturday. The rally's website states that "America is in a state of emergency evidenced by the symptoms of widespread moral depravity" and that God is calling the church to head "where the foundation of our American liberty was birthed." METRO

Dealing with some crafty competition

► Yuengling, America's oldest brewery (and biggest American-owned), rejiggering its brand in Philly ► The competition for beer drinkers has grown dramatically with rise of microbreweries and craft beers

When news broke back in July that Yuengling Brewery had hired a new ad agency, some began to wonder if the Pottsville brewery was losing its competitive advantage.

Was the brewery trying to reinvent itself? Would there be drastic changes to the iconic brand? Were they falling behind in a flooded beer market?

The simple answer is they just wanted to thank the city that put them on the map.

"When I purchased the brewery from my father in 1985, Philly was one of the first cities to really embrace our beer and claim it as their own," owner and president Dick Yuengling told Metro. "I've always been proud of that association, that you can ask for a Lager and get a Yuengling, and it all started in Philadelphia. So the campaign exists now to thank Philadelphians for their loyalty to our beer."

Yuengling was founded in 1829 and is America's oldest

"Philly respects great breweries and great beer. We've never had a challenge there. It's a beer-lover's market."

MAGUIRE

brewery. It is also the largest American-owned brewery after Anheuser-Busch was sold to a Belgian company in 2008. But being the largest never mattered to Yuengling. Their goal has been to keep the brand relevant — in the place where it all started, Philadelphia.

"It's never been my goal to be the largest," Yuengling said. "It's very important to us to grow in our backyard."

"We've had a really, nice visible presence in Philly for the past five years," said Megan Maguire, market manager for Ommegang.

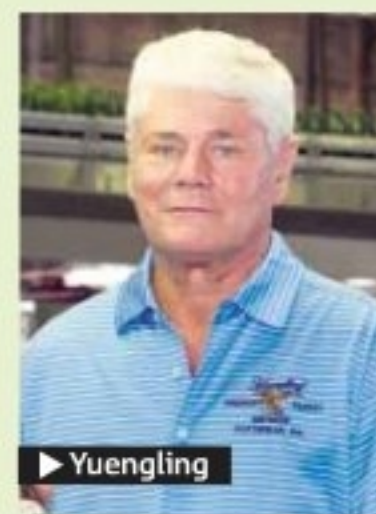

But the new ad campaign is not in response to craft beer's success. The way they see it, it's a thank you card for being loyal to Yuengling. The beer will taste the same. The logo won't change. And this Friday, at 6:30 p.m., Yuengling will host Philly-Wide Lager Toast, where more than 250 area bars will offer patrons one free bottle of Lager.

"We really wanted to give back to one of the cities that started our fortunate growth," said Yuengling, who will personally lead the toast live on Comcast SportsNet. "So how would you thank a friend for their help, or reward a co-worker after a long day at work? You buy them a beer."

Gaining on the big guys

Craft brewers, in particular, have maintained solid financial growth in recent years. Dollar sales were up 15 percent in the first half of 2011, and the volume of craft beer sold was up 14 percent.

"Craft brewers continue to innovate and brew beers of excellent quality," said Paul Gatzka, director of the Brewers Association. "America's beer drinkers are rapidly switching to craft because of the variety of flavors they are discovering."

Dick Yuengling, president and owner of Yuengling Brewery, acknowledged the trend, but noted that he doesn't feel threatened by their success.

"I enjoy trying some of the local crafts from time to time, as I appreciate the art of brewing. When we started brewing lager in 1987, I wanted to create a brand with more flavor and color than what was popular or mainstream at the time. So I understand the desire to invent new tastes and styles, and the desire of the consumer to try them," Yuengling said.

Local favorites

Philly's brewery market has become more competitive thanks to the success of local brewers such as:

Yards
Victory
Dock Street

Yuengling, in partnership with Origlio Beverage, will supply more than 10,000 bottles (420-plus cases) of its lager to more than 250 bars across the Delaware Valley Friday night.

Pennsylvania ranks 23rd in the U.S. in breweries per capita, according to the Brewers Association. The Commonwealth has 77 breweries, or one for every 164,966 people. Vermont is No. 1.

Despite being available in 14 different states, Yuengling wanted to increase its revenue in Philly, which has become insanely competitive thanks to the popularity of local breweries.

Councilman: Stronger lending oversights needed

CITY HALL. A Council committee on Thursday gave preliminary approval to a bill introduced by Councilman Wilson Goode Jr. that would establish a Council Responsible Banking Review Committee to provide more oversight of the community reinvestment goals and strategic plans to address lending disparities required of banks in which the city deposits money.

"As banks have consolidated and grown into super-regional or even national in size, many have become less focused on serving individual markets and less responsive to local ... credit needs."

ASSOCIATION FOR NEIGHBORHOOD AND HOUSING DEVELOPMENT

"As banks have consolidated and grown into superregional or even national in size, many have become less focused on serving individual markets and less responsive to local community credit needs," The Association for Neighborhood and Housing Development said in a statement supporting the legislation. "Responsible Banking Ordinances are important tools local governments can enact to ensure that the banks that operate and take deposits in their communities are truly responding to credit needs within those communities." METRO/AW

What's the best time to prepare for emergencies? Before they happen.
What's the best place to find out what you need to know? Your local Red Cross.
Here are some tips to get you started.

GET A KIT

A well-stocked emergency preparedness kit should contain enough supplies to last you for three days. Some of the things you'll need:

- Water
- Food
- Flashlight
- First Aid Kit
- Radio & batteries
- Tools
- Clothing
- Copies of identity cards and important papers
- Sanitary items
- Cash
- Contact information

MAKE A PLAN

It's so low-tech, it's no-tech. But writing down what your family needs to know and do in an emergency could make the difference between disaster and survival. For example:

- Talk with your family. Set responsibilities for each member of your household and plan to work together as a team.
- Plan ahead. Choose places to meet if a disaster scatters your family.
- Learn essential actions. Everyone should know how to turn off electricity, water, and gas.
- Tell everyone where emergency supplies are kept.
- Practice evacuating your home twice a year.
- Include your pets. If you must evacuate, know what you need to do to take your pets with you.

BE INFORMED

In an emergency, information can be the most powerful life-saving tool of all. So arm yourself with it.

- Learn what disasters—like floods or tornadoes—are likely to affect where you live or work.
- Identify how local authorities will contact you. And where to get important information in the event of a disaster.
- Find out what you can do. To learn about simple first aid techniques, CPR, and basic disaster training, contact your local Red Cross. Make sure at least one member of your household is trained in first aid, CPR, and the use of an automated external defibrillator (AED).
- Share what you learn with family, friends, and neighbors. Encourage them to be informed too.

Power grab at City Hall over budget

► Councilman wants governing body to have much more control over how taxpayer money is spent ► Proposal, likely vetoed by mayor, would give power over $300 million in funding

Philadelphia's annual budget battle got an early start this year, as Councilman Mark Squilla on Thursday proposed a Home Rule Charter change that would give City Council an unprecedented amount of power when it comes to determining exactly how city dollars are spent.

"That will enable Council to be able to move and adjust up to 10 percent of the budget given by the administration into departments that the whole Council will decide can use more money," Squilla said. With this fiscal year's operating and capital budget totaling over $3 billion, the legislation would give the council free reign over as much as $300 million, Squilla said.

Right now, City Council must approve amounts the administration dedicates to each

Up to voters

The legislation must be debated at a committee hearing before the council votes on it. Though Mayor Michael Nutter's press secretary said the administration could not comment because it had not yet read the bill, Squilla said he is "sure" the mayor will veto it. "But then we would have a right, as Council, to override that veto with a number of votes, a majority," he said.

The charter change would then be subject to a public vote at the polls. Squilla said he hopes the question will get on the ballot during the municipal elections in May.

department, but can't specifically determine line items on which the money is spent. "Council feels, I think, at this point — at least I feel — that some of the things we have during the [budget] hearings and we ask a lot of questions and we get to suggest certain ideas to the administration, but there's never really that little give-and-take," Squilla said.

He said that the measure would allow councilmembers to more effectively address the concerns of their constituents.

"A lot of times people say, 'Go see your Councilmembers and try to get more money,'" Squilla said of the budget hearings. "Well, we can try, but we really have no authority to do that."

ALEX WIGGLESWORTH
awigglesworth@metro.us

► Squilla said City Council could have given more money last year to the Fairmount Park system.

Spend or cut

Squilla said the budget passed in the spring would likely have looked a little different, had the legislation been in effect. Here are some of the areas that might have seen more money:

► The Department of Parks and Recreation: Squilla said that he would have liked to have seen more money go to city parks, which have been the target of $8 million in cuts over the past four years. He attempted to compensate by adding a parking ticket surcharge, the revenue of which would be dedicated to the parks, but Nutter vetoed it.

► The Department of Licenses and Inspections: Crackdowns on delinquent property owners and increased enforcement of code violations which come at a cost to the cash-strapped department

Trial of pope's ex-butler to shine light on Vatican

VATICAN CITY. The Vatican has certainly seen more sensational trials in its long history. The Inquisition ordered Galileo to recant his theory that the Earth revolves around the sun, and philosopher Giordano Bruno was burned at the stake for heresy.

But even those cases did not involve a breach of trust by a papal aide — the issue at the core of this Saturday's trial of papal butler Paolo Gabriele for stealing and leaking the pontiff's personal papers. REUTERS

Corporate America sweats as US nears fiscal cliff

► A Boeing factory worker

Top U.S. executives have less confidence in the business outlook now than at any time in the past three years — and a key reason is fear of gridlock in Washington over the fiscal deficit and tax policy.

The uncertainty, coupled with slowing demand in Asia and Europe, is forcing corporate leaders to postpone decisions on major investments and hiring, and hurting sales of everything from textbooks to telephone lines.

"If we don't deal with the fiscal cliff, and don't deal with predictability on taxes for both citizens and business, with the rest of the world in a struggling state, this is really bad for us," John Chambers, CEO of network equipment maker Cisco Systems Inc., told Reuters on Tuesday.

United States over the next six months, up from 20 percent a quarter ago, according to a Business Roundtable survey released on Wednesday. Only 30 percent plan to raise capital spending, compared with 43 percent previously.

The main culprit is the fiscal cliff — Washington's self-imposed year-end deadline to agree on a plan to shrink the federal budget or trigger $600 billion in spending cuts and higher taxes that were put in place last summer. REUTERS

Concerned industries

Lockheed Martin Corp., General Dynamics Corp., Boeing Co. and other U.S. weapons-makers have been warning for more than a year that uncertainty about the Pentagon budget, tax rates and the debt ceiling was dampening their ability to invest, hire new workers or commit to new acquisitions.

They have lobbied lawmakers to avert across-the-board budget cuts that would slash projected defense spending beyond $487 billion in cuts already agreed to beginning in fiscal 2013.

Most of the companies have accelerated their cost-cutting efforts. REUTERS

Poll: Obama leads Romney 40 days before election

President Barack Obama maintains a lead over Republican challenger Mitt Romney with 40 days left until the Nov. 6 election, the latest Reuters/Ipsos poll said on Thursday.

The result showed the race basically holding where it has been for days with Obama enjoying an advantage over Romney. Obama got a bump in support from his Democratic National Convention earlier this month and Romney was hurt by the leak of a video from a private fundraiser. The Romney campaign argues that its internal data shows that the race is much closer than most polls are showing. REUTERS

The few who matter: Election hinges on the undecided voters

► Liz Poole waits in line to pick up a ballot during early voting at the Black Hawk County Courthouse Waterloo, Iowa. Early voting starts yesterday in Iowa, where in the 2008 election, 36 percent of voters cast an early ballot.

You've heard about them for months. The press obsesses about them. Political scientists toil to understand them. The campaigns are consumed with trying to win them over.

They are undecided voters. They remain impervious to persuasion. Who are these people who hold the country's fate in their hands? And why can't they make up their minds?

Campaign professionals see undecideds as comprising two distinct groups: one whose members follow the news and have still found cause to withhold their support, and another that has yet to tune in and may not until the October

The first group is "not nearly as partisan as those who've already picked a candidate," says John Brabender, chief strategist in former Senator Rick Santorum's Republican presidential primary campaign. POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

Just when you thought the political season could not get any dirtier, here comes Madonna offering to strip naked if Barack Obama is elected to a second term. Which is confusing, because I thought she supported him. Seriously, if she wants a second term, why would she threaten us that way? Granted, she is in good shape for her age, but so is Betty White and I don't think America has designs on seeing her "au naturel" either.

Such is the state of this election as we burn down to the wire. It doesn't matter that the some polls appear to show a widening gap in favor of President Obama. Both sides know the contest remains close and the debates are yet to come. Still enough that any small thing (like say, Madonna's sequined corset) could tilt the scales, and that awareness will no doubt spur increasingly desperate maneuvers in coming days.

Which leads me to a word of caution: Even if we push aside rash statements from aging pop stars, this is a good time to slap on your skepti-goggles about everything you see from the campaign trail.

Already this race has been defined by both sides taking wild liberties with the truth. The Obama camp has assailed Mitt Romney as a predatory, job outsourcing, potential felon; the Romney team has accused the president of building a welfare state, all but bankrupting the government and undermining national security; and both sides have trotted out precious little evidence to back their claims.

That's the bad news. The worse news is it's going to continue. I asked a campaign operative recently, "How come you keep saying things about the opposition that are categorically false?" The response? "Because it works."

Perhaps it is good that the early voting has begun; because I suspect, in terms of honest campaigning, we've already passed the high water mark.

From here on out, the promises, pronouncements and pandering from both sides will likely run wild, like Madonna on election night ... maybe.

News in brief

Soros pledges $1 million to pro-Obama super PAC

Billionaire financier George Soros has committed $1 million to the super PAC that is helping fund President Barack Obama's reelection bid, a person familiar with the pledge said Thursday. The move by Soros could trigger more big checks from liberal donors who have avoided giving to super PACs because of their concern over the unlimited spending power of such groups.

Until this year, Soros held the record as the biggest contributor in an election cycle for his 2004 political giving. His record has been eclipsed by Las Vegas casino owner Sheldon Adelson.

Nicholas Brody, who fit the description of the terrorist.

"There was that crescendo of mania at the very end [caused by Carrie's bipolar disorder], but throughout that first season, it was sort of simmering," Danes says of her character's condition. Though her illness complicated things, Danes believes the highly intelligent Carrie had "some suspicion that maybe her condition was responsible for her genius. I think that's probably true for a lot of people with the condition," she adds.

What's to come

After Carrie's condition was made public, the disgraced operative sought treatment through electroconvulsive therapy. Undergoing the procedure, which can cause memory loss, led to her being unable to recall key information she uncovered about Brody — even after she is asked to return to duty.

"She's been outed as this person with this condition, and that has altered her in a pretty fundamental way," Danes says. "She's not hiding to the same extent, and she doesn't have that same kind of panic and defensiveness. And when we find her at the beginning of the second season, she's been very humbled, and she's really struggling with a real crisis of confidence. She gets her mojo back, but it takes some time."

Nicholas Brody

Played by Damian Lewis

When we first met him ...

Brody, a Marine sergeant who was held by al-Qaeda as a prisoner of war for eight years, returned to the U.S. a war hero. However, CIA operative Carrie Mathison suspected he had been "turned" by terrorists.

"In the first season, he was a man just trying to reenter civilian life," Lewis says. "There was a degree of damage which elicited some sympathy from the audience — but at the same time he also was the menace. So people were terrified of him."

What's to come

Now a U.S. congressman, will Brody achieve his goal of destroying America from within?

"Brody made a mission statement at the end of the first season saying he wanted a nonviolent political subversion of American policy," Lewis says. "He would like to think he's in control of his own destiny. He absolutely won't be, is my prediction for this season. I think he will live in a state of heightened anxiety and paranoia."

► The Opera Company recruited curators from the Barnes and Art Museum when staging 'La boheme'

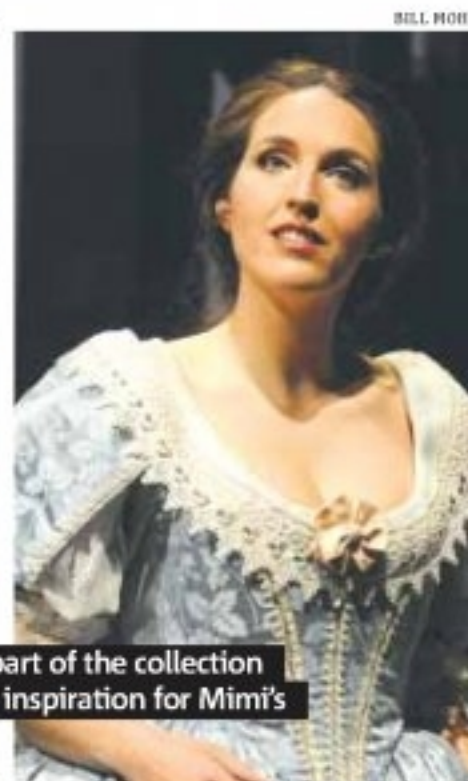

The Opera Company of Philadelphia looks both forward and backward in time to open its latest season, presenting Puccini's 19th-century classic "La boheme" using 21st-century technology. "Opera is the original multimedia experience," says Opera Company general director David Devan. "So in a strange way, we're coming from our roots. We're just using more motherboards to do it."

The idea for the new production, by Italian director/designer Davide Livermore, was to reflect the bohemian influences on the opera's setting by using large-scale HD projections of Impressionist and post-Impressionist paintings. "And it hit me," Devan recalls. "Hang on a second, we've got Van Gogh's 'Sunflowers' in Philadel-

The Opera Company teamed with curators from the Barnes and the Art Museum to select paintings that would help set the mood and tell the story. Nearly all of the 40 works that will be represented in the production were culled from the two museums' substantial collections. "At the Opera Company of Philadelphia, we're big believers in community," Devan says. "This seemed to be a great opportunity to engender huge civic pride by bringing these great arts institutions onto the stage of the Academy of Music. It allows Philadelphia to be proud and recognize that it has world-class treasures on its own real estate."

'Looper'

Director: Rian Johnson
Cast: Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Bruce Willis, Emily Blunt
Rating: R
Grade: A-

Thirty years in the future, time travel is illegal. The only people who use it are criminal organizations who send undesirables back to the past to be disposed of. Joe (Joseph Gordon-Levitt) is an experienced looper — or present-day trigger-man — stashing his pay so one day he can retire and live in France. He doesn't count on a crime lord from the future, the Rainmaker, ordering his loop be closed. That is sending his future self, Old Joe (Bruce Willis), to the present day to be executed.

The actors aren't the stars of this movie, the ideas are. Is it airtight? Nope, but what time travel movie is? Future crime bosses could have done the killings themselves and sent the bodies back to the past be disposed of, but where's the fun in that? We need the two Joes in one place to get the story revved.

Director Rian Johnson uses the sci-fi premise to allow the character of Joe in both forms to examine his life. It's humanist science fiction that values the person over special effects. It's also a wildly entertaining chase movie, with enough sci-fi to keep the left side of your brain engaged while the right brain will thrill to the chase.

'The Perks of Being a Wallflower'

Director: Stephen Chbosky
Cast: Logan Lerman, Emma Watson, Ezra Miller
Rating: PG-13
Grade: A

The hero of "The Perks of Being a Wallflower," Charlie (Logan Lerman), has only begun the journey through high school. Terrified of life as a freshman, he's soon befriended by a group of seniors on the fringe of their own social microcosm.

This adaptation of the 1999 young adult novel, written by the film's director, Stephen Chbosky, is remarkably faithful to the story without falling victim to the usual trappings of book adaptation. Unlike other novel-to-film works, "Perks" remains economical in its storytelling.

As for the trio at the center of the film, Lerman is a flawless Charlie, imbuing the role with enough subtlety to make even the most maudlin moments seem believable. Then there's "Harry Potter" star Emma Watson. She performs well in the role here, but as a character with a dark, slutty past, we're just not buying it. METRO/HP

A good movie is like a fine stew

► Or a soup, if you're asking Joseph Gordon-Levitt about his latest film, the multigenre hybrid film, 'Looper'

SONY PICTURES PUBLICITY

Rian Johnson's new science-fiction noir, "Looper," features a brain-melting take on time travel — as Joseph Gordon-Levitt's character says, "Time travel hasn't been invented yet, but in the future it will be." But that doesn't mean the actor himself needed to wrap his head around the concept.

"My character in the movie, he doesn't really know or care how it works. It's something that exists in the future, and he just knows it's his job to show up at a certain time and pull the trigger," Gordon-Levitt tells Metro. "Time travel is not the point of this movie. ... It's the springboard, so to speak."

The movie, which mixes elements of film noir and Westerns into its futuristic world, centers on a showdown between Gordon-Levitt and his older self, played by Bruce Willis. So did all the genre-mixing take some getting used to? "I wouldn't say that I was like, 'In this part of the movie I should act like they do in other noir movies and in this part of the movie I should act like they do in other sci-fi movies or

'Won't Back Down'

Director: Daniel Barnz
Stars: Maggie Gyllenhaal, Viola Davis, Holly Hunter, Emily Alyn Lind
Rating: PG Grade: 0000

"Won't Back Down" is this year's "Freedom Writers" — but with a twist. This inspiring movie stars Maggie Gyllenhaal and Viola Davis as driven mothers trying to flip their failing school in hopes of creating a place where students are encouraged to learn and grow. Inspired by actual events, this film has the ability to grasp audience's attention and spark conversations of reform and change. The film has authentic performances by Holly Hunter, who plays Evelyn Riske — a union worker trying to do what she believes is best for everyone — and

► "Hotel Transylvania."

Emily Alyn Lind, who plays young student Malia Fitzpatrick: a girl who is overlooked in class because of her learning disability. Both of their performances will have audiences in tears, but Gyllenhaal clearly steals the show with her portrayal of a free-spirited and hopeful mother who learns what it's really all about to be an adult. Although the storyline is captivating, it becomes rather formulaic at times. The plot follows a familiar arc, possibly because it was based on true events and fits the mold of a certain kind of feel-good film. But even through those predictable patches, that true story is inevitably quite moving.

'Hotel Transylvania'

Director: Genndy Tartakovsky
Stars: Adam Sandler, Selena Gomez
Rating: PG Grade: 0000

It's not that the notion of a hotel exclusively for misunderstood monsters seeking refuge from hostile humans isn't clever, but in "Hotel Transylvania," at least, the premise overstates its welcome. Featuring the voices of such talents as Adam Sandler and Selena Gomez, the family-friendly film aims high with a visual play on gothic gags. Unfortunately, they only endure as long as you are entertained by such things as flatulent B-movie monsters.

#1 DAILY NEWSPAPER IN CENTER CITY

WEEKEND, SEPTEMBER 28-30, 2012

Talking points

Stewart and Pattinson look on the bright side

Now that Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson are back together after her cheating scandal, the pair is reportedly looking to put a positive spin on everything. "They are more intense than they've ever been, especially Kristen. It's like they're desperate for each other all the time," a source tells Lainey Gossip. "She's trying to see this as something that brought them closer together."

Brand can't stop yapping about Perry

At this point, Russell Brand has been talking about his marriage to and divorce from Katy Perry almost as long as they were actually wed. In a candid interview with Australia's "60 Minutes," the British comedian talks about why things didn't work out between him and Perry. "Sometimes it goes well, sometimes it don't, but if you ... sense there's an incompatibility, then in any relationship, regardless of the status, ... it kind of is best to go separate ways," he says. "I think if you're someone who's really into mountain biking, it would be good to go out with someone else who's into mountain biking. If you're really into Eastern mysticism, go out with someone else who is into Eastern mysticism. If you're a devoted tennis professional and you get married to a crystal meth addict, you might have trouble. I've been in a lot of trouble."

Today in ridiculous celeb baby names

What if it's all been a lie?

So much time, effort and column space has been spent dissecting the marriage (Demi is a cougar!) and the eventual divorce (Ashton likes young Vegas tail!) between Demi Moore and Ashton Kutcher.

And you know what? We shouldn't have. Really. As it looks like there wasn't a valid marriage to begin with. RadarOnline has a very interesting theory: They say the reason Moore didn't file for divorce from Vegas — not to mention when he started his new relationship with Mila Kunis — is because they weren't legally joined in the first place.

Kutcher and Kunis

Sources close to the couple have speculated that when they got hitched during their Kabbalah ceremony in 2005, it was just a symbolic ceremony and not a legal marriage, hence no divorce needed.

Smart move, you two. Now there won't be a long, expensive legal separation. But one downside? What to do with all of that leftover red string.

The new trend in Hollywood baby names? Naming your child after a geographical location. In the past month, Nick Lachey and wife Vanessa Minnillo named their baby Camden, as did Kristin Cavallari and fiancé Jay Cutler. Next up in the locale-as-a-name trend? Reese Witherspoon, who gave birth Thursday to a baby boy named Tennessee James. "Reese Witherspoon and husband Jim Toth welcomed Tennessee James into their family today," her rep confirmed to People magazine. "Both mom and baby are healthy, and the entire family is thrilled."

For those of you who are keeping track at home (hopefully none of you), there's also Brooklyn Cruz (son of Victoria and David Beckham), Bronx Mowgli (son of Ashlee Simpson and Pete Wentz), Egypt (son of Alicia Keys and Swizz Beatz), Paris (daughter of Michael Jackson and some very well-paid egg donor) and India (daughter of Chris Hemsworth and Elsa Pataky).

As for me, I'm holding out for a little Tajikistan Spears sometime in the near future.

'Sons of Anarchy' star found dead, named suspect in murder

Johnny Lewis, an actor who appeared on "Sons of Anarchy" and an ex-boyfriend of Katy Perry, allegedly killed his landlady on Wednesday and then died after falling from a roof.

According to news reports, Lewis beat an 81-year-old woman he was renting a room from in L.A. When neighbors responded to her screams, he beat them with a piece of wood. He then climbed onto the roof of the house and fell to his death. Drugs are believed to have led to Lewis' behavior.

Johnny Lewis played a supporting role on the first two seasons of "Sons of Anarchy."

"It is very comforting knowing that my comp. case & Social Security claims are being handled by the best in the business. I have no problem referring someone to the Social Security or Workers' Compensation department."

Beer & bites!

► You don't have to be in Germany to celebrate Oktoberfest ► Stock up on your favorite Bavarian brews and make this fun twist on the traditional cuisine

Weekend recipe

Europe meets America in this sausage-y take on the corn dog using bratwurst or kielbasa sausages covered in a beer-cornmeal batter. Don't forget to serve these with ice-cold brewskis and some spicy, grainy mustard at your Oktoberfest celebration.

Mini corn dogs: Beer and sausage

Ingredients:

- 2 quarts vegetable oil, for frying
- 48 wooden toothpicks (plastic frills will melt or burn)
- 1½ pounds cooked kielbasa or bratwurst sausages, cut crosswise into 24 pieces
- 1 cup fine- or medium-ground

- yellow cornmeal
- 1 cup all-purpose flour
- 1 tablespoon baking powder
- ½ teaspoon fine salt
- 1 cup cold beer (any kind)
- 2 large eggs
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 2 tablespoons granulated sugar
- Whole-grain Dijon mustard for dipping

Instructions:

- 1 Heat the oven to 250°F and arrange a rack in the middle. Set a wire rack over a baking sheet; set aside.
- 2 Pour the oil into a Dutch oven or a large, heavy-bottomed pot. Heat over medium-high heat until it reaches 350°F on a deep-frying/candy thermometer.
- 3 Meanwhile, insert two toothpicks into the cut side of each piece of sausage, leaving about 1 1/4 inches of the toothpicks exposed on one side; set aside.

► You'll need some special equipment for this: a deep-frying/candy thermometer.

Game plan

The fried corn dogs can be frozen for up to two weeks. To reheat, place them on a baking sheet and bake in a 350°F oven for 20 minutes or until heated through.

- 4 When the oil is almost ready (about 300°F), whisk the cornmeal, flour, baking powder and salt together in a medium bowl. Whisk the beer, eggs, honey and sugar together in a large bowl until combined and the sugar has dissolved. Add the cornmeal mixture to the beer mixture and stir with a rubber spatula until just combined. Pour some of the batter into a short, narrow container or drinking glass, leaving one inch of room at the top.

- 5 When the oil is ready, evenly dip a sausage piece into the glass of batter by holding the toothpicks and rotating the sausage as needed until it's completely covered. Immediately place it in the hot oil. Repeat with four more sausage pieces. Fry, turning occasionally, until light golden brown all over, about two minutes. Using tongs, transfer the sausage dogs to the wire rack on the baking sheet and place in the oven. Repeat with the remaining sausage pieces, working with four or five at a time, refilling the glass with batter as needed, and letting the oil return to 350°F between batches. (When you reach the last few sausage pieces, you may need to tilt the glass sideways while rotating the sausages to evenly coat them with batter.) Serve immediately with mustard for dipping.

New chef on the block

Hot chef

Eli Kulp may have just arrived in Philly, but he isn't shy about shaking things up.

The new executive chef at Old City mainstay Fork will debut his dinner menu on Monday, and it offers quite a few treats, including a nightly fixed-price menu and revamped a-la-carte options (smoked pumpkin tortellini, we're coming for you). We caught up with him to talk Philly, food and fall.

What's the chef recommend for a date: brunch or dinner?

I'd choose a nice dinner over brunch anytime because chances are the food is going to be of higher quality and you don't have to deal with the crowds. And to get a night out with the wife would be amazing.

Where are you eating when you're not in your own kitchen?

Well, I've been completely swamped with the relaunch of Fork, so honestly my days off are rare right now. But I've had great meals at Zahav, as well as Will BYOB.

How about some shopping tips: Any particular farmers markets or vendors that you frequent, either for work or for home?

We always go to as many local markets as we can, especially the larger ones in Rittenhouse Square as well as Headhouse Market. Also, I can't get enough of the incredible celery that Merv is growing at Hodecker Farm in Manheim. We were just out there last week picking

Tasty tip

What's one dish Kulp would order again?

"I've recently moved to Philly, so I'm still exploring the scene. But I must say the razor clams and snails at Tai Lake were incredible."

some up. It would be hard to meet a nicer guy, especially one that is elbow deep in celery.

Let's just pretend you get Sunday off — where are you going?

Getting all necessary supplies from Federal Donuts and then hanging out with my son in Washington Square. It's my favorite park in the city, and it's right across the street from our place. The weather is seriously amazing right now.

Being present in 'The Absence'

Melody Gardot doesn't live out of a suitcase. She lives out of three. Not just when she's traveling, which is much of the time, but that's it: That's her stuff. It's not about minimalism; it's about space for life over space for stuff, a theme that's at the root of her latest record, "The Absence."

"There's a notion that absence is lonely, but it doesn't have to be," says Gardot. "I've spent so much time in Portugal in recent years; I'm always coming and going so often that someone told me that it's like I never leave. I'm never really absent. My memory is there."

It's a nothing-isn't-empty theory that the 27-year-old jazz singer and songwriter thinks holds true in music: "Sometimes when you don't fill up by playing every note, the music is more beautiful and often has more value."

Gardot says that for now she has every material thing she needs. "I am a practicalist," says the Philly native. "I have one jacket for the cold, one for the rain. Shoes that are closed, shoes that are open. My essentials are a bit more than they would be on a desert island. But that's because I have to get ready for shows."

Another bonus to not having a home is not having household chores. "I definitely don't like to clean the house. The good thing about living in a hotel is that you go out and come back later and someone's cleaned your room."

LINDA LABAN
linda.laban@metro.us

Quoted

"There's a notion that absence is lonely, but it doesn't have to be."

GARDOT

Finding therapy in the kitchen

One thing Gardot misses about not having a home is cooking. She says that eating a macrobiotic, organic diet helped her body heal after an accident in 2003 — she was hit by a car whose driver shot through a red light — left her with brain and spinal injuries. "When I come off the road, the first thing I look for is a place to go where I can cook," she says. "I love to cook. It's the most therapeutic way to recover."

Consensus: No one ever wants to hear from Ahmadinejad

RE: "WHAT, YOU MEAN YOU DON'T WANT TO HEAR ALL ABOUT HIS NEW WORLD ORDER?" (METRO, SEPT. 27) Anne Bruskin asks how I, as a Christian, would feel if Ahmadinejad vowed the destruction of America and all Christians on Christmas or New Year's Eve. Well, I'd feel the same as if he said that on any other day.

MARK AQUINO, VIA E-MAIL

Anne Bruskin asks the hypothetical, "How would Christians feel" about Ahmadinejad vowing our destruction on Christmas or Easter Sunday. I can't answer for us all, but I would feel the same way about it as any other day. He's a blustering madman, and I would disregard his bluster. KATE LERNER, VIA E-MAIL

Fault in Libyan incident lies solely with perpetrators

RE: "VIOLENCE NOT FIRST RESORT OF THE FAITHFUL"

(METRO, SEPT. 26) So the perennial far-right letter writer Joseph DuPont tries to imply Obama is soft on the religious violence that claimed the life of Ambassador Chris Stevens? The fact that the videos and cartoons trigger violence in religious fanatics is just that — a fact. Obama correctly dissociates himself and the administration from the attitudes in the "sophomoric video," but points out that this is a country of free speech where the government is not a censor.

He also said that nothing justified these violent responses. Where exactly did he go wrong?

JOHN BONAVIA, VIA E-MAIL

Or does it lie also with filmmaker?

I do not know where Joseph DuPont gets idea that Secretary of State Clinton "apologized" for the anti-Mohammad video. The blame rightly is on the mobs. Christians should be applauded for not burning down Serrano's house or lynching the authors of "Book of Mormon." But, likewise, there are good, pro-democracy Libyans to be applauded for defending and mourning Stevens. By the way, the video was neither a "sophomoric" satire nor was it "Mel Brooks-like" — as far as I can see it was a mean, ugly, deliberate provocation by an angry Egyptian Christian. The U.S. Supreme Court put a limit on free speech if you falsely yell "Fire!" in a crowded theater. A. J. MIKOFKY, VIA E-MAIL

The US: Focusing on important matters since 1776

RE: "NFL OFFICIALS CLOSE TO RETURN: REPORT" (METRO, SEPT. 27) Outrage! How dare the NFL subject us all to replacement referees. Pages and pages of news articles! A New Jersey legislator sponsoring a bill that would ban replacement ref's in NJ! Even the president mentioned it. Americans seem ready to take to the streets in protest. And rightly so. It's not as if anything more important is happening in our country. Thank God nobody is wasting energy on issues that will actually affect the people of the United States!

ROBERT LA ROSA, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. There are two big factors operating in your favor that will enhance your probabilities for success. First is your desire to be helpful, and second is the pride you take in your work.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. You're an especially good organizer, especially in promoting and regulating an activity that can promote one of your special interests. It won't take long for others to join in.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Although you will be lucky with most of your endeavors, you won't necessarily be so fortunate in promoting a material interest.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Your hopes and expectations are likely to have some marvelous chances of fulfillment. Don't let a negative occurrence or down-at-the-mouth friend convince you otherwise.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. This is an excellent day to devote your efforts to matters that could either enhance your financial position or better your career in some way. You'll be lucky in either case.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. You won't be inclined to take a backseat to anyone, which will quickly become evident to anyone who attempts to usurp your authority, no matter how slight it might be.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Go ahead and team up with others, as long as you know they will do what is required of them. However, it would be best if you supply the plan and they furnish the force.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Even though we live in a self-contained society, when you do things that put the needs of others above your own you will come out a winner.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Although you might have to contend with a number of disturbing factors, your determination will make sure they'll have little influence over you.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. A great way to start your day is to get going on that exercise program you've been promising yourself you'd start. If you can't, at least include something that is physically invigorating in your day.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. This is an excellent day to finalize all those projects you've left dangling; just don't attempt to do too many at the same time. Make quality more important than quantity.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Persons with whom you associate will have a strong influence on your performance and the quality of your work. If they are doers, you'll be one as well.

Belle of the Ball: Osi refuses to wear tutu, Eagles-Giants rivalry adds newest chapter

► McCoy stokes fire as NFC East rivals meet for first time ► Umenyiora won't wear ballerina outfit Sunday night ► Birds 6-1 in last seven meetings, Big Blue with two Super Bowl titles

The latest shots fired in the Giants-Eagles rivalry came from the always-entertaining lips of LeSean McCoy.

McCoy, entrenched in an ongoing Twitter battle with Osi Umenyiora, called the defensive end a "ballerina in a Giants uniform" on ESPN. McCoy was absent in the locker room the past two days as he deals with a sore hip, but the running back is probably laughing it up somewhere.

Umenyiora has mostly taken the high road when asked about it. He even threw out some self-deprecating humor Thursday, telling New York reporters that he won't be wearing a tutu Sunday night.

"They fine you," Umenyiora told reporters. "No tutu, no nothing. Just a regular Giants uniform."

Of course, this rivalry is about much more than McCoy and Umenyiora. These two teams have a pure hatred for each other. The Eagles have dominated the series in recent years, winning six of the last seven meetings. But the Giants have dominated where it matters most — in the trophy case, with two Super Bowl titles in the past five years.

"Most of the time, it's a physical, physical and tough, tough ball game," said Eagles offensive coordinator Marty Mornhinweg. "There has been a couple where they have been low scoring, tough, physical with a lot of running by both sides. Cold weather, we have been through a lot of those. It's a great rivalry and one of the very best."

"We know the Giants are a big rivalry. We are always ready to play when they come to town because they're one of the best teams in the league," Brent Celek said. "Obviously, they won the Super Bowl twice in the last five years. They're a great team, and we're going to have to be ready for them."

MIKE GREGER

► McCoy puts a juke on Giants defensive end Osi Umenyiora. McCoy called Umenyiora the fourth-best defensive lineman on the Giants earlier this week on ESPN.

Dawkins honored Sunday

Brian Dawkins fever — catch it!

One of the greatest players to ever put on a Philadelphia Eagles uniform is back in town this weekend to enjoy a special tribute ceremony at the Linc. The Eagles will officially retire his No. 20 jersey before the start of Sunday night's Giants-Eagles game. (Ticket-holders are invited to attend the press conference,

ON TV SUNDAY

NY Giants at Eagles,
8:20 p.m. (NBC)

but space is limited). Then, Dawkins will be honored on the field and address the fans during a halftime ceremony.

There has been a lot of turnover in the Eagles' locker room since Dawkins' departure. For those who were here, the memories are everlasting.

"Brian Dawkins is one of my all-time favorite players and one of the best to ever put on an Eagles uniform," owner Jeffrey Lurie said when Dawkins retired. "On the field, in many ways, Brian re-invented the safety position."

For those that played against him, the respect is just as strong.

"I think the hardest hit I ever took was from Brian Dawkins," Mike Vick said. "He was an outstanding leader, a competitor and an ambassador for the NFL."

If you can't get to Sunday's game, go to philadelphiaeagles.com. The team's official website will be broadcasting all the tributes live.

NHL cancels preseason; CBA talks set to resume?

The NHL made official what we all knew last week: The preseason is cancelled.

The league had previously cancelled all games through the end of September. On Thursday, they axed all remaining games, meaning the earliest players could take the ice would be Oct. 11, which is Opening Night.

If no progress is made between players and owners — and the two sides haven't held formal bargaining sessions in two weeks — then regular-season games will start being cancelled next week. However, the NHL and NHL Players' Association are expected to meet Friday. The NHL locked out the players Sept. 16, following the expiration of the previous CBA. METRO

► The Flyers and Matt Read won't play in any preseason games this year.
